SCHEDULE "A"

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

During its 150 year history, this house has changed its name, style and even location. This house is situated on part of a land grant deeded to John Brant, son of Joseph Brant. The property was purchased by August Bate as a present to his daughter Elizabeth, who married Philo Bate (Lake Captain) in 1850. He in turn sold the property to Jesse Nickerson (Jeweller). Built c. 1855 for either of the aforementioned, it was rebuilt and doubled in size by William Dalton. In 1878 it was named "Chestnut Villa" by its new owner, Amanda Baxter, who added Victorian improvements: bay windows, front gable with gingerbread trim and vestibule, while preserving the Georgian proportions and windows of the east and west elevations. In 1906 it was bought by Maxwell Smith, Mayor of Burlington, who added the Edwardian two-level verandah on the lakeshore side. In 1984, after the house had been moved 110 feet from its original site and then left vacant for two years, subject to destructive forces of weather, vandals, and vermin, it was restored by Kadlick and Williams for Freure Construction, converted into two luxury condominiums and renamed "Brant's Landing". Its rescue and the high quality of its rehabilitation were celebrated as a turning point for Burlington: the preservation of this landmark set a new standard for redevelopment of heritage sites.
